CRN SELECTS MIMOSA SYSTEMS AS TOP 50 EMERGING TECH COMPANY FOR 2007

Contributions to Email Archiving Technology and Channel Commitment Recognized by CRN for Second Year Running

Santa Clara, Calif. – June 6, 2007 — Mimosa Systems™, a leading provider of Live Content Archiving solutions, today announced that CRN magazine has recognized its NearPoint™ for Microsoft® Exchange Server live content archiving solution as a Top 50 Emerging Technology for 2007. CRN honors vendors for instituting highly successful channel strategies by recognizing them on its highly touted Emerging Technology list, published in this week's issue. Vendors are chosen by CRN's editorial team for their contributions to technology and channel selling. Customer references are also used to help select companies for this prestigious list.

Mimosa was recently named TechTarget's SearchExchange.com Product of the Year in two categories, also recognized by Techworld as a finalist for Product of the Year, received a Top 10 Product award by Network World, and was named one of five "Storage Standouts" and a Top 75 Emerging Vendor by CRN in 2006.

Mimosa NearPoint addresses critical customer requirements for email information archiving, eDiscovery, regulatory compliance, data protection, disaster recovery and storage optimization. The solution enables litigation readiness, business continuity and end-user search while reducing overall operational costs.

"The CRN Emerging Technology list is particularly rewarding for us because it recognizes our technology leadership and our commitment to build strong channel partnerships," said Christophe Culine, senior vice president, worldwide sales, at Mimosa Systems. "Channels are crucial to our success and we intend to continue to work as hard as ever to deliver a compelling value proposition to partners and customers alike."
